Comment Of The Day

CAR PARKS - A P.S.

WE commented yesterday on a problem of space - the lack of parking areas in Hongkong and Kowloon. It is a problem which many people have given much time and attention to. But we are reminded of another problem of space. At St. James Settlement annual meeting yesterday, Bishop Hall said that the average home space for the Settlement members and their families "is less than they will be given when their coffins are laid in the Cemetery."

The Bishop's comment is surely a reminder that the replacement of bed-rooms, cubicles, cock-lofts, unnumbered huts and staircases, by decent, habitable homes is still our greatest need. It is a sobering thought that while we lament the lack of 200 square-foot spaces for our cars, human beings are quietly resigned to spending the rest of their lives in a dwelling space less than a tenth of this size.

MOUNTAIN LEAD MINE

IN the House of Commons on Wednesday, Mr. Julian Amery made a statement on Mountain Lead Mines Ltd. In 1956 this was a subject of wide public interest. Since then it has dropped out of the limelight, but today it is coming back into prominence because of the belief of one person in particular that an injustice has been done. The facts that Mr. Amery gave to Parliament have been challenged locally. Possibly in trying to summarise the details, Mr. Amery went astray. But since the local government has gone so far as to supply full information to London there is no reason why the correct version cannot be corrected locally. One other point needs to be explained, which Mr. Amery did not make clear. Why the people of the mining area did not object initially to the granting of a licence but later objected strongly. Mr. Amery himself has said he had found it difficult to discover their motives.

There is no reason for exaggerating the importance of this issue and there may be quite a reasonable explanation. But it seems the less that is said about this business, the more public curiosity is provoked. Besides it should not be necessary, at any time for people to take their grievances to London when they can be settled locally.

Prince Henry Says 'She Was Enchanting'

A Milan magazine today quoted Prince Henry of Hesse, the "palatine prince," as saying that Princess Margaret was an "enchanting girl" but any talk of their marriage was like "building castles in the air."

The weekly magazine Gente quoted the 31-year-old Bachelor who escorted the Princess on several occasions during her Roman holiday last month, as saying no one "would decide to marry after knowing a girl only three days."

"Princes are human beings like anyone else," he said. "If a friendship arose between Princess Margaret and myself, and we went about together, there is no need to build suddenly so many castles in the air and to anticipate events."

He asked the Press "to end its speculation and let things follow their normal course."

BRITAIN'S BIG DEALS WITH RUSSIA

Contracts Worth £29m Announced In London

London, April 30.

Two big British industrial groups today announced contracts with Soviet Russia totalling £29 million (HK$464 million). This comes on the heels of an announcement by the Vickers Armstrong Group that it had secured a $2,200,000 contract to build a chemical fibre plant in the Soviet Union.

British Plea For Action Against Hongkong Rejected

London, April 30.

Sir David Eccles, President of the Board of Trade, rejected a suggestion in the House of Commons today that he should give special assistance to the British enamel hollow-ware industry to compete with Hongkong.

He had been asked by Mr. George Thomas (Labour), Sir David Eccles said the value of imports of enamel hollow-ware from Hongkong was less than £1,000 in the last three years.

Quite Right

Mr. Thomas said "The Hongkong industry has taken our markets in Africa. The whole basis of the trade is being thoroughly undermined by much cheaper products. What are you British industry?"

Sir David Eccles replied: "You are quite right that the trade is declining because the consumers apparently prefer plastics or glass."

"It is also true that the Hongkong industry and the plastic hollow-ware industry have eaten into overseas markets but I cannot help to regain an overseas market we have lost."—Reuter.

Bid To Capture Hongkong Trade

Karachi, April 30.—A six-member trade delegation left today on a six-week Far Eastern tour which it hopes will result in Pakistan grabbing a big share of Hongkong's textile market in Indonesia.

A Commerce Ministry spokesman said recently Pakistani textiles could underbid and capture much of the present Hongkong textile market in Indonesia.—U.P.I.

Move Against HK

Guatemala City, April 30.—The Government announced today that it has raised by 100 per cent customs duties on imports from 28 countries and territories, including Hongkong, with which it has an unfavourable balance of payments.—U.P.I.

Red China Readmits Rightists

Peking, April 30.

Two repentant Chinese "rightists" have been elected to the leading body of the national political organisation from which they were suspended a year ago for attacking the Communist regime.

They are Chang Po-chin, a former Communications Minister, and Huang Chi-ling, a former Kuomintang General who lost his seat in the National People's Congress—China's parliament—a year ago for the same reason, was also elected to the CPPCC standing committee.

Dillon No. 2

Washington, April 30.—Mr. Clarence Douglas Dillon, 49, was nominated as Under Secretary of State by President Eisenhower today. This was the post formerly occupied by Mr. Christian Herter, now Secretary of State.

He has been serving as Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs.—Reuter.

Britniks Decision

London, April 30.—The British cabinet approved today the broad lines of a "modest" space research programme, which will include the launching of artificial satellites, informed sources said.

Prinex Ltd., a subsidiary of Courtaulds, have been awarded a £15 million contract to supply complete plants and technical processes for the manufacture of viscose rayon tyre cord, acrylic staple fibre and cellulose acetate yarn.

The Biggest

Courtaulds are the world's largest producers of man-made fibres.

A Courtaulds spokesman said later that deliveries were due to start in about a year. The date for the completion of the contracts was August 31, 1961.

Viscose rayon tyre cord is used in the majority of carcasses of road vehicle tyres in Britain.

Products ranging from suitings to carpets and dress materials can also be manufactured by the Russians with the new plant and processes.

Tyre Plant

The second announcement came from the Dunlop Rubber Group.

A new tyre factory being built in Russia is to be equipped with £14 million worth of equipment supplied by British firms.

The factory on a 78-acre site at Dniepropetrovsk near the Dnieper river will be the largest tyre plant under one roof in the Soviet Union.

It will employ 2,500 people and produce 2,000,000 tyres a year.

The factory has been laid out and will be equipped according to recommendations of a subsidiary of the Dunlop Rubber Company which is acting as consultants to a consortium of British firms operating under the name of Rystyn Ltd.

Since last October over 60 conferences have been held with Russian technicians in London.

Ike 'Fed Up' With Monty

New York, April 30.

A Washington correspondent for the Scripps Howard chain of newspapers reported today that Mr. Eisenhower was "fed up" with Lord Montgomery's criticism.

The correspondent, in the dispatch in the New York World Telegram, quoted a White House associate as saying: "Monty wasn't invited up to Gettysburg again."—Reuter.

Tonight, workers of the Leftist trade unions will be holding a joint celebration at the Kam Ling Restaurant. The celebrations will include Cantonese plays, opera, folk songs and dances. Other trade union workers will be holding their own celebrations at a number of restaurants throughout the Colony.

New $3 Million Road For Colony

Work is to start in about two months' time on the construction of a road across the North Kowloon foothills to link the Kai Tak area with Taipo Road, thus by-passing Shamshuipo and other busy districts of Kowloon.

'My Fair Lady' In Russia Brings Protest

New York, April 30.

The authors of the Broadway hit, "My Fair Lady," protested today that plans by a Soviet producer to stage the musical in Russia without their permission were "outrageous, unethical and illegal."

Librettist Alan Jay Lerner and composer Frederick Loewe said they were filing formal protests with the U.S. State Department and the Russian Government in an attempt to prevent Soviet producer Victor Louis from pirating the musical.

"In flagrant disregard of the authors' rights," Lerner and Loewe said, "they had not even been approached for permission to produce the show in Russia but had been told by Louis that the musical 'definitely will be staged' at Sverdlovsk and Kiev during the 1959-60 season."

They said Louis, who translated the libretto into Russian, told them: "I expect you know that no agreement has yet been reached between the USSR and the USA as regards authors' royalties, so the Soviet productions will not be to your material advantage."

The authors said the proposed production could jeopardise the entire cultural exchange programme between Russia and the United States.—U.P.I.

Lenin Peace Prize For Khrushchev

Moscow, April 30.

Nikita Khrushchev, the Soviet Premier, has been awarded the Lenin peace prize. It was officially announced tonight.

They Waited For Hours In The Rain

The Hague, April 30.

Hundreds of Dutch people aged 50 today lined up for hours in steady rain and a strong wind outside the royal palace to present flowers to Queen Juliana on her 50th birthday.

A birthday present of more than 1,000,000 guilders (about £100,000) was presented to the Queen this afternoon by a special committee. The whole nation contributed to it.

Part of the gift is for the Queen to spend as she likes and the rest for a modernisation of her study and a hand-made wrist watch.

Throughout the country more than 11 million Dutch citizens celebrated the Queen's birthday with fireworks, military parades, concerts, funfairs and tattoos.—Reuter.

Although the work of the Hong Kong Anti-Tuberculosis Association is planned to meet the needs of this particular community, it is also part of the universal effort to eradicate tuberculosis. Scientists, doctors and others specialising in the treatment of tuberculosis throughout the world have made great discoveries during the last few years and the fruits of their labours are being made available to sufferers of this disease here in Hong Kong by the Hong Kong Anti-Tuberculosis Association.

Importance Of SEATO*What Did Nehru Mean, Asks Prince

Athens, April 30. Prince Peter of Greece said today he had asked the Greek Foreign Ministry to find out what Mr. Nehru, the Indian Premier, meant last week by saying he had been invited to leave India "because some of his activities were considered undesirable."

MY GUESS

"My guess is that undesirable activities are nothing more than my anthropological and personal interest in Tibet."

Prince Peter said the Indian Ministry of External Affairs in New Delhi had told him nothing was held against him personally. But the Chinese Communists objected to his presence in Kalimpong and India, and India would therefore prefer him to go.

"I was unkind enough to ask who was premier of India, Chou En-lai or Nehru?" Prince Peter said.—Reuter.

Alliance To Free Asia

Washington, April 30.

Under-Secretary of State C. Douglas Dillon said today that China's actions in Tibet have demonstrated the importance of the Seato military alliance to the free nations of Asia.

The State Department's economic policy chief said that further reduction of military aid would be dangerous. He pointed out that the new aid budget now being debated in Congress calls for spending 50 per cent of aid funds on economic programmes compared with 45 per cent two years ago.

Dillon headed the U.S. delegation at the recent Seato conference in New Zealand. In Southeast Asia, he said, the threat of Communist aggression and subversion is still very real, requiring heavy defence efforts by the free nations.

Community Danger

"The reality of this community danger was brought home sharply at our meeting by the crime perpetrated against Tibet by China's imperialist rulers, who had solemnly promised at the Bandung conference in 1955 to respect the rights of all the people of all countries to choose freely a way of life as well as political and economic systems."

"All of free Asia has been profoundly shocked by the brutal cynicism with which the Communists violated their pledge to the courageous and deeply spiritual people of that remote and beleaguered land," Dillon said. "It has heightened awareness of the strategic value of the Seato collective security system."—U.P.I.

No News Of Flight Limit

Washington, April 30. The State Department spokesman said today he knew nothing of a reported U.S. Government decision to limit flights by American aircraft in the corridors to Berlin to a ceiling of 10,000 feet.

The spokesman had been asked whether he could confirm or deny a press report that the State and Defense departments had decided temporarily to call off flights above this altitude.—A.P.

Indonesian Pilgrimage To Mecca

Tokyo, April 30. The 7,125-ton Koon Maru, a former repatriation ship and now a Tokyo Bay sight-seeing vessel, left Kobe today for Mecca via Indonesia to carry Indonesian Moslems on a pilgrimage trip.

The ship was chartered recently by an Indonesian Moslem organisation for 100 million yen (£100,000) for a trip from Indonesia to Mecca and back.

RENOVATED

The Toyo Shipping Company, owners of the vessel, had remodelled the ship to conform to the trip's needs. Numerous water faucets have been installed on deck for the Moslems who use water several times a day to purify themselves before prayers.

The ship is scheduled to depart from Djakarta on May 22 with about 1,300 Moslems, arriving in Mecca on June 15.

The ship is due back in Japan in July.—Reuter.

Lancashire Outlook Still Grim

Morecambe, April 30. The outlook for the Lancashire textile industry, despite the Government's £30,000,000 plan for financial aid, was still "to say the least grim," cotton workers delegates were told here today.

Cotton workers deserved more than being told: "If we do help how much are you prepared to contract?" and "What have you done to help yourselves?" and "When are you going to bring yourselves up to date?" said Mr. H. Chorlton, president, opening the annual conference of the United Textile Workers Association.

They were firmly entitled to help from the Government, he said, quoting figures showing reduction in the amount of yarn and cloth produced and the increases in prices over the past 30 years.

SPINDLE COSTS

"It is not often that the cost of re-equipment is brought to the fore," he added, referring to the Government's plan.

"Compared with the cost per spindle of about £1 when the cotton trade was in its heyday we now find that the cost at present is in the region of £20."

"With re-equipment costs so high much thought and consideration is bound to be given before any re-equipment scheme is embarked upon."

The union's own plan for the future of the industry had been recognised in the trade union movement as being the real way for its salvation, Mr. Chorlton said.

Although employers had criticised it as a means of nationalisation "through the back door" it was a constructive effort to show the way through the present competitive jungle in which they found themselves.—Reuter.

Cyprus 2,000 Years Older Than Thought

Nicosia, April 30. The director of the Stockholm radioactive dating laboratory, Professor Ostlund, has confirmed that Cyprus had a civilisation in 6,000 BC some 2,000 years earlier than previously thought possible.

He has dated to 6,000 BC charcoal samples discovered in a pre-pottery Neolithic settlement at Khirokitia by the curator of the Cyprus Museum, Dr. Porphyrios Dikaios.

The discovery means that Cyprus can claim to have at Khirokitia one of the most important Neolithic sites ever excavated in the world.—France-Press.

The China Mail's expose on drug addicts: Part III SQUALOR UNBELIEVABLE

IN 1956 Billy was sent to prison for nine months for being in possession of dangerous drugs. It was his second conviction. He had a "cold turkey" cure in prison, and when he came out in November he was completely broken of drugs and full of good intentions never to touch them again.

"I thought it would be easy to stay off," he went on. "I knew Margaret hated drugs and if I went back to live with her there could be no temptation."

But when he returned to the flat it was to find that Margaret had succumbed while he was in prison and was now herself a confirmed junkie! Within a few days, Billy was back on drugs as firmly addicted as ever.

"Margaret became a patient with one of the doctors. She introduced me, and I was taken on her panel, too. We both decided we wanted to be cured, and as these two doctors were the only ones who had ever taken a real understanding in us junkies, we thought we stood a fair chance."

"Margaret went for a cure first. She went into a nursing home, and succeeded in being broken of drugs. But when she came out she had no where to live, except with me, herself a confirmed junkie!"

"Life in that flat then became a snake-bite. We were continually fighting. When she saw me injecting myself, all her cravings returned. She would scream and plead with me to give her some."

"I knew what she was going through, but I wouldn't give her any. I couldn't cure myself. But she was off drugs. I wanted her to stay off them."

"Eventually Margaret got the stuff somewhere else, and became a junkie again."

Margaret was now too sick to carry on as a call-girl. Billy couldn't work. They lived in unbelievable squalor, existing only from one "fix" to the next.

"The doctors wanted me to take a cure, but I kept putting them off, making excuses. I hadn't enough will-power left even to make up my mind," said Billy.

"One day, a couple of months ago, I was so sick for drugs — I had no money to buy extra on the black market — I altered a prescription. I was caught and taken to court. One of the doctors came to the hearing and spoke on my behalf. As a result of this intervention, I was conditionally discharged. I couldn't have gone through the hell of a 'cold turkey' again. It would have killed me."

"But now I wanted a cure so badly that I leapt at the chance of being broken off drugs under the doctors' care."

So Billy's cure began. He was installed in a flat and gradually, under day and night supervision, his drugs were withdrawn.

Says Billy: "I was in a hell on earth for six days. Hour after hour, I lay there scheming to kill the doctors. I became as weak as a kitten, drenched in sweat, shivering, drained. I couldn't eat, couldn't sleep, couldn't think."

"The day I got my last drug injection, just a tiny quantity of dope, I had no strength left. I was too weak even to talk."

Billy paused. "Now I've been off drugs a whole week. I'm feeling better, stronger, every day. I'm off them, and I'm going to stay off them. The doctors have done it. They've not only broken me of drugs. They've made me want—really want—to stay cured."

Billy has previously been broken of drugs in prison. What is so different about this cure? "Everything," he replied simply. "Before, when I was forcibly taken off, I resented the cure. I hated those who were imposing it on me. As soon as I got a chance, I went back on drugs... just to spite them."

"But the doctors handle you differently. They will go along with you, sympathize and encourage you, until you make up YOUR mind that you WANT a cure. Then, when you are ready, they step in and help you."

"All through the withdrawal of drugs they do it sympathetically. They know what the junkie is going through, and help him with sedatives and, more important, with kindness, to fight the agony."

"And when it's all over, they are still there to help you get a job, get back on your own two feet."

A few days after I spoke to Billy he was taken in a car to a main-line station, with a single ticket in his pocket to his home. Four hundred miles away from the city where he started on the down-grade to a living hell, he has started work as a waiter in an hotel. He writes to the doctors regularly, telling them how he is getting on.

He is four hundred miles away, but he knows that he is not alone in his new world and his new life.

HE was wearing one of those black eye patches like that gent in the American shirt ads.

He looked handsome and impressive like that gent in the American shirt ads.

But there, I'm afraid, the comparison ends.

He wasn't wearing a shirt of any description. And he was advertising nothing — except Robert Ruark, journalist, big-game hunter, best-seller author.

DISARMING

Just back from African safari he sat in his Savoy Hotel suite, bare to the waist, cradling his drink on his sun-tanned and hairy arm. A man's drink of course — Scotch on the rocks.

But I mustn't get carried away as though I were a lady columnist. I mustn't give you the wrong impression of Robert Ruark, child or uncle.

Certainly he has been labelled "the poor man's Hemingway." But he has the disarming capacity to make fun of himself, and I suspect he invented the label himself.

Certainly like Hemingway he's a man's man. But he is not over aggressive in his maleness. Let's call him a man who is normal (or as near the norm as any man gets these days).

He pursues masculine activities like big-game hunting. But he now refuses to kill when he's on safari and he is interested in the African human animal as well.

His best-seller "Something of Value," which had a Mau Mau background, was written after exhaustive research in Kenya.

CHEWED UP

Since then he has made several more long visits to Africa and he is now more of an expert

The decision would have been much tougher but for the fact that "Poor No More" is definitely an autobiographical title for Ruark, who started his career as a dick head.

To date "Something of Value," another apt title, has made him over 600,000 dollars.

"But my book earnings are heavily taxed," said Ruark, pouring more Scotch on the rocks.

"I depend mainly on my earnings as a journalist. I still do my syndicated newspaper column for America which brings me about 65,000 dollars a year. Say about £23,000 in your dough."

"Maybe us columnists are over-paid, but I'm not complaining. What do you make?"

I said: "Much less."

"I am complaining."

TWINING—USED TO GETTING HIS OWN WAY

Take a look at this man

It could be he's playing the world's riskiest game...

by ROSS MARK

SOMETIME soon, possibly as you read this, another American jet-prop air freighter will go screaming into Berlin at a height the Russians don't like. The U.S. Government expects that a detail of Red swept-wing MIG fighters will try to force it down below 10,000 ft. But those American air freighters are going to keep on going in. This I am assured by a man in the American Government who knows.

And, like other responsible people in Washington, this man knows that the horrendous possibility of war is being pushed to a razor-edge balance. If the Russians shoot down one of the lumbering big Hercules freighters there could be a war flashpoint.

The strain

Meanwhile, the strain on relations at the core of the Western Alliance—Britain and the U.S.—is building up alarmingly.

These flights are now high American policy. Unless President Eisenhower intervenes, there will be another high altitude flight soon.

Who is the man who sold the American Government on this dicey, dangerous policy? His name is, Nathan Farragut Twining.

Buzzed

He is an Air Force general, the first-ever to be chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and he is as handsome an edition of an airman as Hollywood could ever contrive.

Digging into the background of America's grave decision for the showdown flights into Berlin, I find that General Twining is the father of this particular brainchild.

Early in March, backed by the commanders of the Marines, air force, army, and navy, General Twining told President Eisenhower that America must start high-altitude flights into Berlin.

He said that as chairman of the Joint Chiefs he would have to use America's most efficient aircraft if Russia blockaded Berlin.

This was the time to assert the West's right to fly into Berlin at any height it chose, establishing a path for the Hercules and other high-efficiency planes.

Remember what happened? Flying at 25,000 ft. on March 27, a Lockheed Hercules was buzzed repeatedly by Soviet fighters.

Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, in Washington at the time to formulate a policy for dealing with the Russians on Berlin, was flabbergasted. This was no time to irritate the Russians by asserting a right that could be demonstrated at a less sensitive time.

Quite so, then Acting Secretary of State Christian A. Hoff said. But Nathan Farragut Twining, a man used to getting his own way, went to work.

In the end he won President Eisenhower's backing for his policy of demonstrating the right NOW.

In the State Department today I found that Twining's views had become firm policy.

An official I talked to growled: "What do you want us to do? Lie flat on our backs and let the Russians run over us?"

Symbols

General Twining is the man who commanded the 20th Air Force in the Mariana Islands in the Pacific during the last war.

His B-29 Super-Fortresses dropped the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

It has been said that two symbols are interwoven in his military career—the albatross and the atom.

The Albatross symbol derives from an adventure in January 1943. A tropical storm forced down a bomber with General Twining and 14 others aboard. For six days they were adrift in a rubber-like craft in the coral sea.

Food was low when two albatrosses swooped down over the raft. Whipping out a pistol, General Twining blew both birds out of the air. General Twining joined his men in eating the birds raw.

His job

Assigned to Washington, General Twining learned the ins and outs of getting his way with Government leaders.

A thatch of thick, silver hair, and a rakish "I like you" smile are two of his tools of trade. He thinks he is one of the smartest men in uniform.

He was made chairman of the Joint Chiefs to give added prestige and influence in the councils of both strategy and national spending to air power.

His job is to make sure that America matches the Soviet Union in the air and in space with military power.

General Twining, in every sense of the word, has become an elder statesman for the air force. Sitting in his big, green office—green to absorb the flash of a nuclear explosion—General Twining today is living up to a tradition.

Three planes have already gone in. And unless there is a change in policy others will follow. General Twining is living up to a tradition.

He got his middle name because of his father's tremendous admiration for David Glasgow Farragut, the Union general in the Civil War, who became famed for his defiant: "Full speed ahead—and damn the torpedoes!"

JACOBY on BRIDGE

THE student won the opening club in his own hand and lost no time taking the trump finesse. East won and returned the remaining trump.

The student played around but eventually had to give after the diamonds. He had two ways to guess the queen and happened to guess wrong so that East made the queen and set the hand.

"Would you have guessed the diamond queen, Professor?" asked the student.

"No," replied the Professor. "I would have made the hand without any finesse at all."

The professor was right as always. The student should have played the ace of spades at trick two and continued by cashing the king of clubs and the three high hearts.

Then he would lead another trump and sit back. It would not matter who held the king of trumps or queen of diamonds or what was played next.

A diamond lead would solve all diamond problems. Any other lead would allow a ruff in one hand and a diamond discard in the other.

NOW BE FRANK

By JEAN GRAHAM

DO you dictate what your husband wears?
Before you deny it, think again.

Maybe you're not positively domineering about it. But the chances are that you do your masculine fashion-dictating in a negative or subtle way.

Honestly, now, haven't you ever peeked over his shoulder at a male fashion-plate and muttered: "I wouldn't be seen dead with you in that get-up?" Or said in his hearing: "Of course, John can't wear hats—they just make him look comical?"

Haven't you made it plain to him in a hundred different ways that in anything other than a plain dark suit, white shirt and modest tie he looks (a) fat, (b) "mutton" or "dressed-up-as-lamb", (c) funny, or (d) like a superannuated Teddy Boy.

And isn't it true that you prefer him to dress like all the other men because any fashion-venturing on his part embarrasses you?

Now, if you will kindly stretch out on the consulting room couch I will explain why it does embarrass you. It is because stability is one of the first qualities you look for and nothing smokes more of stability than conformity. And since uniformity of dress is the most immediately obvious sign of conformity—and therefore, stability—you do your damndest to preserve it.

We've gone wading in these shallows of feminine psychology because I've been listening to men's wear experts in London complaining that women are to blame for the stick-in-the-mud state of masculine fashion.

So, now you know, why not let the old man have his head just a bit fashionwise? Encourage him to be less inhibited in his choice of clothes. Begin in a small way with brighter, bolder leisure wear.

Then, for your further enlightenment, lay hands on any one of the magazines catering for the clothes-conscious male and prepare to be amazed at the number of men's styles designed, admired, but, alas, seldom worn because—"my wife wouldn't like it."

KEEP IT MODEST

Disdain in Spain falls mainly on the girl who wears a bikini. In fact, she'll be lucky if local reaction stops short at disdain. For, whatever their private opinions, publicly Spaniards as a rule prefer the female form modestly concealed.

Contrary to popular supposition, there is no national law in Spain which forbids the wearing of two-piece swimsuits. There are, however, local laws in the majority of resorts which permit the police to issue dress-or-depart orders to offending tourists.

In some spots the veto is absolute. In others it is enforced only away from the beach.

Whether this is imposed by modesty on the part of Spanish officialdom, or lack of faith in its ability to control its more hot-blooded citizens, is beside the point.

The fact remains that flouting these rules can land you in a very embarrassing spot.

And Spanish officials recommend that you play safe and leave bikinis and two-pieces at home.

Another tip: Don't wear shorts or slacks anywhere other than the beach in Spain.

The Italians, too, are getting touchy on the same subject.

This, and the popularity of Spanish and Italian resorts, may account for the cover-up look in so many of the new swimsuits—elegant editions of the old Mack Sennet Bathing Beauties style.

Will you take the plunge—the neckline plunge?

Paris is urging the deep décolleté version of the classic shirtwaister, and British whole-salers are reportedly nibbling at the idea.

Frankly, I can't see Englishwomen being daring enough to wear these in the daytime. But as cocktail or semi-formal evening wear, I recommend them as an invaluable addition to any wardrobe.

British ready-mades are the world's best. And they are going to be better still.

The reason is, unromantically enough, that the members of the British Group are adding a teaspoon of anticorporate hotter competition from members of the European Common Market—who include France and Italy. And they are launching an all-out drive to convince the world that Britain puts the best clothes on your back.

THEY'RE WEARABLE

Paris and Rome may set the style pace, but no country—not even America—comes anywhere near Britain in turning out quality-finished wearable adaptations of the latest styles.

Highlights of the drive will be a London Fashion Week, starting on May 25. The week will begin with a money-no-object presentation under one roof of the Fashion Group's productions and will be followed by individual showings by Group members in their own showrooms.

Wherever you may be, you are likely to benefit, fashion-wise, by this drive to prove to the world that British ready-mades are the best in the world.

ABOUT SHOES

Shoes have got as pointed as they can be. In the latest models making an appearance in London I note a tendency towards rounder toes without sacrificing the slim elegance so recently achieved.

A welcome trend, this. For, with other than the slimmest ankles, the dagger-point shoes did tend to make so many legs look like sharpened sausages.

FOR NIGHT-TIME BE A CAT

Victor Stiebel uses one of the new flock-spotted nylon nets—with white dots on a green ground—for this Dresden-look ball gown. Spotted net is draped over a full underskirt of plain green nylon net and falls in a trailing panel from the strapless bodice.

HAVE you ever watched a cat at play and wondered why it is so lithe and supple? The answer is quite simple—it stretches. It stretches after eating and when it wakes. If you study it closely you will see that at intervals during the day it arches its back and elongates its body, stretching each limb separately to its fullest extent. If you want to tone up your body, align your waistline, or rejuvenate those sagging muscles, you cannot do better than emulate the cat—and stretch, stretch, stretch.

STRETCH

Extra inches round the waist and an unsightly spare tyre can be quickly whittled away by a good stretch morning and night. Stand erect with your arms above your head and stretch each arm alternately as far as it will go. Relax for a few minutes and reach for the moon again, each time trying a little harder.

Even that distasteful lump at the neck, known as the "dowager's hump," may be corrected by stretching. Stand upright and stretch your shoulders back against your spine. You will feel the "pulling" effect immediately.

ROLL

A double chin or a slack line can be toned up by rolling your head forward, to the side, back and round and by giving a good firm pull on your muscles as your head tilts back.

Stretching is particularly beneficial to the office worker, who has to sit at a desk day after day in the same position. Ligaments and muscles tend to get tired and then begin to sag with weariness. When that dull feeling begins to set in, rise and give a hearty stretch in all directions. (Should there be on-lookers eyeing you disapprovingly over the top of their spectacles, perhaps it would be as well to retire to the cloak-room first.)

BEND

Even the housewife who is on the move from morning to night can fit in the odd stretch and bend without hindering her in her daily round of household stretch or she puts things away in the cupboard, laying the table or using the vacuum cleaner. And there is nothing to prevent her having a thoroughly good stretch on rising in the morning or before retiring at night.

The main thing to remember, whether a housewife, wage earner or a lady of leisure, is that stretching need not be prolonged for any length of time. It should, however, be performed at least once or twice a day. Remember that every good pull will trim your waistline and make you as supple and lithe as that feline creature—the cat.

YOUR BIRTHDAY ... By STELLA

FRIDAY, MAY 1

BORN today, you have great capabilities as an executive. You cannot only make the plans, but can carry them through to completion quickly and efficiently. You know how to pick associates who work together as well as enterprisingly. You are quick to size up people and things, if ever, air in judgment. This is a talent which can be very useful in business.

However, there is another side to your nature in need of expression. You have some talent in the arts, especially in literature, and you can write forcefully as well as enterprisingly. You know how to wrap up a moral lesson or "message" in words that are palatable as well as amusing. Your sense of humour is keen, but you must be warned against becoming sarcastic. You could hurt another's feelings without intending to. You take great interest in all phases of life and will be eager to depict them through the medium of one of the arts. You have a vivid imagination, but the more practical side of your nature keeps it well under control.

Popular with members of the opposite sex, romantic and affectionate, you will tend to fall in love at first sight. Be sure, before you wed, that you are right!

Among those born on this date are: Robert Nichols, landscape painter; General Mark Clark, World War II Commander; Kate Smith, singer; George Jones, Sr., painter; Benjamin Labadie, architect and designer of the Capitol in Washington, D.C.

Don't Let Whim Tell You What—Or When—To Eat

"RECENTLY, I read in the magazine, Agricultural Research, that although diets in general have improved during the past few decades, there are still some people who do not know what constitutes a good diet. Furthermore, that others are confused by claims made for special foods and fat diets. "Do you agree with these remarks, Madam?" inquired the Chef.

"Regrettably, I must say that I do," I replied. "In general, the majority of people eat by whim and fancy. They don't stop to realize that their bodies correspond to engines and that, like an engine, the body needs a regular, adequate amount of fuel to supply its energy needs."

"Can this be done, Madam, if coffee, juice and toast is eaten for breakfast, a coffee and cake break is taken at 10 a.m., followed by a light lunch and a big dinner?"

"Adequate Amount"—The total amount of food eaten might be adequate, Chef, but it is not well distributed. The tendency is to overeat at night.

"The heavy meal supplies far more calories than the body needs for evening activities and the night's rest. As a result, part of the food is often in the body in the form of fat which is a common cause of overweight."

DINNER

Cream of Spinach Soup
Pot Roast of Beef
Browned Parsnips
Fried Potato Dumplings
Jellied Fruit Cocktail
Coffee
Ice Cream
All measurements are level unless otherwise stated.
Port Roast of Beef: Rub 5 lb. rolled pot roast of beef all over with the following mixture: 1/2 tsp. garlic salt, 1 tsp. onion salt, 1 1/2 tsp. table salt, 1/4 tsp. powdered bay leaf and 1/4 tsp. pepper.

Brown all over in its own fat in a heavy kettle. This takes about 30 min.

In a saucepan, combine 1 (10 1/2 oz.) can vegetable juice and 1/4 can-measure water. Bring to boiling point.

Pour around the pot roast. Cover. Simmer-cook 2 1/2 to 3 hrs. until fork-tender.

Remove excess fat from the drippings in the kettle and make gravy. Serve with fried potato dumplings or parried flaky potatoes.

Filled Potato Dumplings: Grate 6 medium-sized, cooked white potatoes. Add 1 grated, medium-sized peeled onion and 1 well beaten egg. Stir in 1/4 c. sifted baking flour, 1/2 tsp. salt, 3 tsp. baking powder and 2 tsp. milk. Shape into balls the size of golf balls.

Have ready a filling made of 3/4 c. minced smoked ham mixed with 2 minced slices onion, cooked until yellowed in 1/4 c. diced fat salt pork. Mix in 1/4 tsp. pepper.

Indent the potato balls. Press in 1 tsp. of the filling. Press the edges together. Drop into 2 qts. rapidly boiling salted water. Cook 10-12 min.

The dumplings will rise to the surface of the water. Turn to cook the top-sides. Spoon over melted plain or browned butter.

Wide Awake

"I was feeling quite wide awake last night. The clock had already struck twelve and everyone was fast asleep. But I decided to play myself a tune or two on my guitar. I was a little afraid of waking anyone up. So I took my guitar and climbed way up to the attic."

"Now," continued Christopher, "I don't know whether you've ever been up to the attic in the middle of the night."

Knarl and Hamid said they never had been up to the attic in the middle of the night.

"I bet it's so dark, you can't see anything," said Knarl.

It All Depends

"It all depends," said Christopher. "Sometimes it's as dark as the inside of an ink bottle. And sometimes the moon shines through the window. Last night the moon shone in through the window."

"As I walked from one end of the attic to the other, I could see all sorts of queer shapes—things that looked like elephants and lions and palm trees and big snakes and strange birds. But they were just trunks and boxes and piles of books and heaps of old shoes and things that no one wanted any more."

"At any rate," said Christopher, "I sat myself down on a pile of books and started tuning up my guitar."

"Hardly had I begun this when I heard a squeaking noise. Right in front of me stood a girl—

STORIES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

An Attic Adventure

Christopher Cricket Takes A Midnight Stroll—

By MAX TRELL

"I HAD a curious adventure last night," Christopher Cricket was saying to Knarl and Hamid, the Shadows with Turned-About Names. "I caught a little mouse to jump rope."

This sounded like such an unusual adventure that Knarl and Hamid urged Christopher Cricket to tell them the story from the very beginning.

So he made himself comfortable on the edge of the carpet near the fireplace, and after crossing five or six of his legs, he began:

"I was feeling quite wide awake last night. The clock had already struck twelve and everyone was fast asleep. But I decided to play myself a tune or two on my guitar. I was a little afraid of waking anyone up. So I took my guitar and climbed way up to the attic."

"Now," continued Christopher, "I don't know whether you've ever been up to the attic in the middle of the night."

"Hardly had I begun this when I heard a squeaking noise. Right in front of me stood a girl—

A Champion

"Was the little mouse a better rope-jumper than ordinary little girls?" asked Hamid.

"Oh, much better!" said Christopher. "You should have seen her skip across the floor over those elephants and giraffes and lions and palm trees. She even jumped rope up and down the walls! I played my guitar for her. She danced in time with all my tunes."

"Well," said Christopher as he stood up, "that's what happened last night in the attic. It's a wonderful place in the middle of the night. And I've been thinking that maybe those lions and palm trees and elephants and giraffes aren't all just heaps of books and old trunks and boxes—maybe one of them is real!"

The girl-Mouse jumped rope in time to Christopher's tunes.

Rupert and the Blunderpuss—47

Rupert hardly pauses to answer Uncle Bruno's question. "It isn't really an animal at all. It's a Conjurer's mist!" he calls. "Best of course, it's a very beautiful one!" he adds, hurriedly, as the Blunderpuss in his arms begins to squirm. After a while it settles down and purrs, so he makes his way towards the higher grounds, dodging all his pals. I've been a long time, I hope the Conjurer hasn't gone away, he murmurs. Then to his relief, he spies a figure, who is standing beside the big house.

Lemmon Speaks His Mind

JACK LEMMON loves us. He told us so recently. He loves London—"Paris, Rome, New York, Los Angeles—they're women's towns. But London is the place for a man," he said, slipping his dry martini with his feet up on a chair opposite.

"The atmosphere is sort of masculine—even the buildings are solid and masculine. And there are so many shops for men. Wherever in the world do you find so many shops for men?"

But more than London Mr. Lemmon (who wears women's clothes through most of his latest film) loves British women.

"I love all women," he said expansively, but, English women, most of all. They soothe a man.

"They are ready to listen to his trials and minister to his needs. If you want to go somewhere, they say: 'All right, let's go.' An American woman usually has some counter plan."

"I'll probably get closered when I get back to the States, but I think that American women really have a problem."

"Although the American man likes to say, 'My wife's a clever business woman or a clever writer, he also likes to have her sitting at home, cooking the dinner and listening to him."

"But she's too bound up with the problems of her own career to listen. Career women you meet in England seem to be more public about it."

"I think," said Mr. Lemmon, "that it is the women's fault. That's the worstest mistake I made in my town."

George Dews Thrashes Indian Bowling To Give Worcesters First Innings Lead

Worcester, April 30.
India's bowlers suffered heavy punishment here today as George Dews, 37-year-old Worcestershire batsman thrashed his way to the first century of the season in English first class matches.

Dews was always the gay cavalier, driving and pulling the over-pitched ball or half-volley to score 122—his first century for two years.

After four wickets were down for 68 runs Dews helped his county to total 201 for five wickets for a first innings lead of 42.

The three-day match ends tomorrow.

It was a refreshing effort after the Indians had occupied six and three-quarter hours to reach the modest total of 219 runs.

Dews, a stalwart with years of county cricket behind him, hit two sixes and 14 fours for his 122 in three hours.

With Bob Broadbent, who was undefeated with 69, he shared in a fifth wicket stand of 187.

Early in the day the Indian bowlers were by Chadrakant Borde, who made 80, including 13 fours in three hours 35 minutes.

First bowler Derek Pearson bowled without the slightest sign of a suspicious action today and finished with the best figures of four for 40.

India, who have been deficient in pace bowling for some years, gained much satisfaction when 19-year-old Ramkant Desai took the first two Worcestershire wickets for 17 runs.

Baffled

Moving the ball either way, he had Don Kenyon, the Worcestershire captain, caught, and next bowled Martin Horton for an inswinger for a duck.

Laddie Outshoorn (34) and Derek Richardson (25) produced some excellent strokes but both were baffled by Subhas Gupte and it seemed that India had gained the mastery.

It was at this stage that Dews joined Broadbent and the two proceeded to wrest the initiative from the touring team.

Dews, who completed his century out of 154 in two and a half hours, was finally caught in the deep by Jaisimha, India's twelfth man.

Scores

Scores at the close of play today were:

First Innings
INDIA: 219 all out (C. C. Borde 60; Pearson four for 40).
WORCESTERSHIRE: 201 for five (G. Dews 122, R. Broadbent 69 not out).—Reuter.

FASCINATION, REBELLION AND RENOWN EXPECTED TO FIGHT OUT FOR MINOR POSITIONS

The Hongkong Jockey Club's Twelfth Race Meeting of the 1958/59 season, to be held tomorrow afternoon, will consist of ten events, the most important of which is the Hongkong Derby.

This will be contested by the pick of the 1959 Subscription ponies over the gruelling distance of one and half miles. The Special Cash Sweep will be decided on this race.

The first Saddle Ball will be rung at 1.30 p.m. and the first race will commence promptly at 2.00 p.m.

Here are my estimates of the chances:

FIRST RACE

Mosque Handicap: From 2 Mile Post.

The ponies to watch here are Bowsprit (W. S. Chow), Hawaiian Moon (Sun Chow), Aftab (M. A. C. Roza) and Another Victory (U. Kum-lun).

Bowsprit is my choice, and I think it should win, but Hawaiian Moon is not to be ignored as this pony can move and the distance is more to its liking.

Aftab and Another Victory have something to say with regard to the other positions, but I don't think they can win.

SECOND RACE

Bramham Moor Handicap: Six Furlongs.

This is a sprint affair in which Class 9 ponies will figure.

The strongest contender in this race is the probable absence of Diamond Lil is Rebel II (K. Kwok). This pony is certainly very fit and may prove dangerous, and a win from this combination is not unlikely.

Firestone (Alex Lam) should fill second place with French Bean (H. K. Hung) being the best outsider.

THIRD RACE

Clarence Handicap (First Section): One Mile.

In this race Five Gold (M. Samarcq), Wing Hang (H. K. Hung), All Happy (E. S. Wong) and Gladie (K. Kwok) appear to be the strongest contenders.

By virtue of its win in the Surrey Handicap (Third Section) over this distance at the 10th Race Meeting for Class 9 ponies, Wing Hang is the favourite and will no doubt be in good demand and I feel it will have a good chance of winning again.

Wing Hang should be very close, having undergone special preparation for this event.

All Happy and Gladie may have something to say here and are not to be neglected.

FOURTH RACE

Hongkong Derby: 1 1/2 Miles 1959 Ponies.

There will probably be six starters in this classic of classics and apparently the issue will rest among Mayflower (H. K. Hung), Fascination (M. Samarcq), Rebellion (P. Plumby) and Renown (Starr Liu).

With two sensational victories to its credit, Koo Shing-cheung's brown gelding entry has unquestionably become the unanimous favourite to win the classic and so far its challengers have not shown enough stuff to suggest some hints of putting up a real fight.

Fascination has proved in training that it can really travel, especially over long distances, and it has some very good prospect of taking the second place.

For the third position Rebellion and Renown should fight out the issue.

FIFTH RACE

Alveston Handicap: From 1 1/2 Mile Post.

Chastrol (M. Samarcq) is showing top form and should be a firm favourite.

Ponies ready to offer opposition are Alandale (A. Ostrouff) and Star of Stars (Alex Lam).

SIXTH RACE

Clarence Handicap (Second Section): One Mile.

G-Man (K. Kwok) and Oscar Prize (P. Plumby) should fight out the finish in this race.

Reurrection (H. K. Hung) has shown good form in morning training and should do well if properly handled on the way.

Grace (Chun Kit) is also ready to take on the best here and should not be ignored.

SEVENTH RACE

Almsty Handicap: From 2-Mile Post.

Lucky Chap (Alex Lam) has impressed in its morning workouts and is strongly favoured to win here.

Golden Bear's chances are good and if A. Ostrouff can handle this animal well enough it should figure prominently at the finish.

Another pony which has attracted some attention during morning gallops is Free Kick (P. Plumby).

As an outsider Alben (Chun Kit) is worth following.

EIGHTH RACE

Gordon Handicap: Six Furlongs.

This event will be fought out by Class 7 ponies.

Judging from its last outing, Not So Bad (H. K. Hung) will probably win.

Opposition is likely to come from Miracle (K. Kwok).

Hallmark (A. Ostrouff) is another pony to watch, but it may disappoint again, whilst High Noon (H. Samarcq) is not bad.

Fameran (Alex Lam) may be expected to challenge over this distance.

On account of the low weight which it will carry (137 lbs), Lymbur (Allan Chan) is worth following as an outsider.

NINTH RACE

Clarence Handicap (Third Section): One Mile.

In this race for the Third Section of Class 4 ponies, Confuser (H. K. Hung) has the best recommendation for a win on account of its victory in the Hampshire Handicap (Third Section) at the 10th Race Meeting.

Brilliance (P. Y. T. Wei) is the next best bet but it must be borne in mind that Na Paul (Chun Kit) should be in the running and I expect it to be near at the finish as it is in fine condition.

Mascot (Albert Lam) and Shillelagh (M. Samarcq) are not to be ignored especially the former which is not bad over this distance.

TENTH RACE

Breasy Handicap: From 2-Mile Post.

This is the final race of the meeting and is confined to Class 2 ponies.

Maytime (A. Ostrouff) has been showing good form lately during morning gallops and over this distance I think it should come in first.

The strongest opposition will come from Welcome (K. Kwok). The pony is certainly very fit at the moment and may even prove a winner.

Native Prince (Alex Lam) is good over this distance and can be depended upon to put up a good fight.

On account of the low weight which it will carry (137 lbs), Lymbur (Allan Chan) is worth following as an outsider.

LONDON, PATTERSON READY FOR BIG FIGHT

Champion May Be Extended From 7 To 10 Rounds Says Nat Fleischer

Indianapolis, April 30.

One of America's foremost boxing experts said today that Brian London, British challenger for the world heavyweight title, should not be taken lightly in his fight here tomorrow night against Floyd Patterson, the champion. Nat Fleischer, internationally-recognized boxing authority, said he believed Patterson would win, but he expressed the view that the champion would have to go from seven to ten rounds to beat London.

"London is a good strong boy and is entitled to a lot of respect," Fleischer said. "Both London and Patterson contented themselves with loosening-up exercises today. The hard part of his training programme behind him, London went out for a fairly long walk from his training quarters just outside Indianapolis."

21 Pounds Heavier

The fighters will weigh in at noon tomorrow (1700 GMT) at the Coliseum, the same arena where the nationally-televised fight will take place. Odds of 10-1 against London were being quoted at the fight headquarters, but there was little evidence of any betting. Patterson, making the fifth defence of the title he won in 1956, is the almost unanimous choice to win although London will have a weight advantage

Second Division English League Soccer Ends

London, April 30.

The second division programme of the English football league ended tonight with the defeat of Sheffield Wednesday, who had already made certain of heading the table.

Wednesday lost 2-1 away against Bristol Rovers to finish with 62 points, two more than Fulham, who will be promoted with Wednesday to the first division. The other Sheffield club, United, also lost away 1-0, to Ipswich, but kept third place, which allows their players to share £600 talent money. Norwich City, the little giant-killers of the FA Cup competition, ended their division three campaign on a winning note by beating Brentford 4-0 to finish fourth in their league.

25 Cars To Compete In The International Trophy On Saturday

FANGIO TO ACT AS STARTER

London, April 30.

Former world champion driver Juan Manuel Fangio from the Argentine will return to motor racing on Saturday — as starter of the International Trophy race at Silverstone.

A good number of motor racing fans are expected to travel to the former Northamptonshire airfield in the centre of England to give Fangio a hero's welcome. Fangio is due to arrive by helicopter and drive a lap of honour round the track. The most important of five races on the programme will be the "International Trophy," organised by the British Racing Drivers' Club as the last test of strength before the Monaco Grand Prix to be raced the following week.

Seven Countries

The big race is confined to formula one and formula two cars and run over 50 laps covering a total distance of 150 miles.

This year it has attracted 25 cars and their drivers from seven countries — Australia, Brazil, Italy, Germany, United States, New Zealand and Great Britain.

All eyes will be on the Aston Martin team making their entry into Grand Prix racing with the new "DBR 4/250" against works teams entered by Ferrari, BRM, Cooper and Lotus as well as several privately entered Maseratis. The Aston Martin will be driven by the English ace, Roy Salvadori and the American Carroll Shelby, who is now in his second season with Aston Martin.

Ferrari, who won the first trial of the current season at Aintree will be driven by the Englishman Tony Brooks and the American Phil Hill taking the place of Frenchman Jean Behra resting before Monaco. The Ferraris are favourites to win the trophy but will face a stiff competition from the BRM's, driven by Stirling Moss, who is still looking for a car to drive at Monaco, and Ron Flockhart.

The Australian driver Jack Brabham, at the wheel of a Cooper, is regarded as one of the most "up and coming" drivers in the world, and must be rated a good outsider's chance in this duel of speed, strength and reliability. —France-Press.

London, April 30.

Yorkshire, with the game apparently well in hand, went through a disastrous last 22 minutes against the MCC at Lord's today. Yorkshire began their second innings needing 133 to win but Brian Statham struck two quick blows and Harold Rhodes another so that at the close Yorkshire were two for three wickets and needed another 134 to win.

Les Jackson, who topped the first class bowling averages last season, achieved his best-ever bowling figures in the second innings of the Derbyshire match with Cambridge University at Cambridge.

TOOK 9 WICKETS
He took nine wickets for 17 runs in 17.3 overs, nine of which were maidens, to enable Derbyshire to win the match by an innings and 92 runs. His match figures of 12 wickets for 33 runs.
Leslie Lenham, 23-year-old right-handed batsman, hit 14 boundaries and two sixes in his 98 for Sussex (279 for six) in the friendly match against Hampshire (97 for four). —Reuter.

American League Baseball Win For Senators

New York, April 30. Bill Fischer, backed up by a 17 hit attack, checked the Detroit Tigers on six hits today in a plucking the Washington Senators to a 9-1 victory in Detroit.

Playing a big part in the Washington triumph were former Detroiters headed by Fischer whose shutout was ruined in the fourth inning when Eddie Yost belted his fourth home run of the season. Reno Bertola, J. W. Porter, Ron Sanford and Fischer — all ex-Detroiters — accounted for seven of the Washington hits. New York was at Chicago and Baltimore was at Kansas City in night games.

RESULTS
Results of today's games were:
Washington 100-250-001-9-17-1
Detroit 000-100-000-1-6-1
Fischer (2-0) and Porter; Foytack, Morgan (3), Sauer (0) Burns (0) and Berberich (0-3).

BY THE WAY

By Beachcomber

An official said the other day that there was
"Nothing morally wrong about taking off your collar in the house."

There remains the horrible breach of etiquette. People with good manners will not even remove a dog's collar in the house. They lead the animal outside. They themselves usually go behind a tree or into a shed to take off their collars.
If they notice that other people in the room are offended when they re-enter collared, they go out again to put on their collars. The man who took off his shirt at an embassy reception was very properly cut by every diplomat in the room.

Stray thought
MALE clowns are funnier than female clowns. That may be the reason why photographs of men who have got themselves involved in the foolery of "fashion" look even more comical than the photographs of women.

Dog's oratorio
I READ of a dog which goes to church frequently. I knew a dog who wandered into a church, heard the word, Bach uttered by the choirmaster, and immediately obliged with a full-throated version of its own. In Indianapolis some years ago a computer produced an oratorio for dogs, based on the noises they make. A critic who complained that it merely sounded like a lot of dogs barking was told that that was exactly what was intended.

Grand National on ice?
THIRTY-FOUR Patagonian
milkmen were chosen yesterday to attend the annual meeting of the Lapp branch of the P.E.N. Club. "This is only a beginning," said a passer-by.

Patagonian milkmen
honoured
EVERY spectacle is more exciting when it is on ice. This, no doubt, would apply to the Grand National. But there is the difficulty of teaching jockeys to control horses on skates.
Promises: Is that not the wrong heading?
Myself: No. It's the wrong paragraph.

LORD GODDARD
GETS BACK
IN A HUSTLE

THE 25,675-ton liner Andes was making heavy weather of it through the Channel swell and the passengers thought she would surely be late docking at Southampton. But one passenger had a special reason for wanting a prompt arrival, Lord Goddard. Now the former Lord Chief Justice is a man who likes to be punctual. He should be well pleased—for despite the weather the Andes managed to dock 35 minutes early.

Lord Goddard hustled down the gangway and into the Customs shed like a man in a hurry. Then he was whisked in a taxi from the docks to Southampton Central station where he just caught the 3.15 express to Waterloo. The result, he was back in London 27 minutes before the other passengers had even left Southampton in the normal boat-train.

Why the hurry? Lord Goddard had an engagement in town: Grand Night at the Inner Temple, a "house" dinner usually held three times a year.

Three hours
Captain Geoffrey Fletcher, master of the Andes, said: "It was essential Lord Goddard should get to London before 7.30 p.m."

In fact, he was at Waterloo by 4.30. It would have been a near thing if he had waited for the boat-train, for it did not get in until 7.28.

He had been away for 10 weeks. He started his holiday in the liner Reina del Mar from Liverpool and in South America visited friends in Chile, Peru, and the Argentine before boarding the Andes at Buenos Aires.

The liner was at Las Palmas when he celebrated his 82nd birthday with a cocktail party in his cabin.

When she left Middlesex Hospital a month ago three mysteries were left: What was her illness? Why had she not returned to Ghana? Where was she?

Now she has cleared them up. She is sharing a modest flat in Maids Vale with an American Negro, 27-year-old Jeri Miles, whom she met in hospital. The kind of doorbell is the name "S. Listowel."

No title.
Last week she relaxed in Paris with old show business friends.

The French capital has happy memories for her. That is where she first met Lord Listowel, while she was singing there.

A long-playing record, "The King of the Blues," was one of her favourite singers, came out over the hi-fi as Jeri told her. "There were all kinds of rumours when Stevie came to hospital. You know the kind of talk—a baby on the way. It wasn't true."

"She was suffering from exhaustion and had to have checks for tropical diseases, all of which were negative."

"Maybe the social rounds were a bit of a strain and the complete change in her life was too much for her."

"She was ordered to rest. We got on so well in hospital that we decided to move in together three weeks ago."

Since then Lady Listowel, said Jeri, had been "busy doing nothing."

Shed visited the dowager countess, but stayed clear of Tin Pan Alley.
Jeri, a U.S.A.F. librarian, came back from studies at Oxford at the weekend to find a note from Lady Listowel: "Bored, Bill [Lord Listowel] coming home. Everything is fine. Gone to Paris for a break. "Thanks just like her," said Jeri. "She's restless away from her husband. It is such a happy marriage."

"She loves the life out there despite the strain and is missing the home-riding and the African music. But doctors' orders have to be obeyed."

So Lady Listowel is staying in Europe until her husband arrives home on summer leave. "They will return together to make plans for the royal visit in the autumn."

First lady's life was terribly hard

THE first months of life as a Governor-General's lady have been a little too much for the Countess of Listowel.

Ex-jazz singer, 24-year-old Stevie Wise, who married Lord Listowel, Governor-General of Ghana, less than a year ago, is under doctor's orders to rest.

A tip to the Princess

A DISCREET memo is being forwarded to Princess Margaret. It says: "Tom Lehrer is in town this month."

Who is Tom Lehrer? He is the 30-year-old former mathematics professor at Harvard who has made himself a reputation in the night-clubbing world by his gruesome lyrics set to his own music.

His record, reaching England along the Transatlantic grapevine, found itself a prominent place in the Princess's collection.

Now he is to make two appearances—sponsored by one of London's biggest musical impresarios, for Mr Lehrer is distinctly cultural—at the Palace Theatre.

Here is a sample of Lehrer lyrics, telling the story of a simple Irish maid: "One morning in a fit of pique, She drowned her father in a creek. The water tasted bad for a week And they had to make do with gin."

When she left Middlesex Hospital a month ago three mysteries were left: What was her illness? Why had she not returned to Ghana? Where was she?

"Maybe the social rounds were a bit of a strain and the complete change in her life was too much for her."

"She was ordered to rest. We got on so well in hospital that we decided to move in together three weeks ago."

Since then Lady Listowel, said Jeri, had been "busy doing nothing."

Shed visited the dowager countess, but stayed clear of Tin Pan Alley.
Jeri, a U.S.A.F. librarian, came back from studies at Oxford at the weekend to find a note from Lady Listowel: "Bored, Bill [Lord Listowel] coming home. Everything is fine. Gone to Paris for a break. "Thanks just like her," said Jeri. "She's restless away from her husband. It is such a happy marriage."

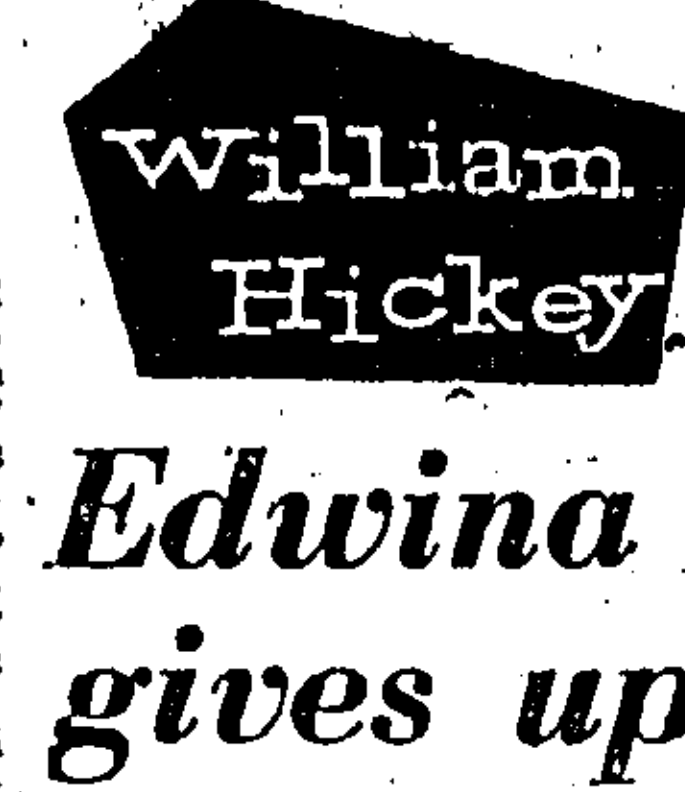

"She loves the life out there despite the strain and is missing the home-riding and the African music. But doctors' orders have to be obeyed."

So Lady Listowel is staying in Europe until her husband arrives home on summer leave. "They will return together to make plans for the royal visit in the autumn."

THE first months of life as a Governor-General's lady have been a little too much for the Countess of Listowel.

Ex-jazz singer, 24-year-old Stevie Wise, who married Lord Listowel, Governor-General of Ghana, less than a year ago, is under doctor's orders to rest.

When she left Middlesex Hospital a month ago three mysteries were left: What was her illness? Why had she not returned to Ghana? Where was she?

Edwina gives up

EDWINA, 19-year-old daughter of Defence Minister Duncan Sandys, has left her job at John Cavanagh's fashion house.

"It was not quite her métier," said a member of the firm.

From the fashion house which counts among its clientele Princess Margaret and Princess Alexandra, Edwina was told: "She felt she was not suited for the job. Not every girl is suited to the rag trade."

Although Edwina opened a small dress shop a year ago I think she decided the trade is just not for her."

Edwina, a granddaughter of Sir Winston Churchill, started working as a £5-a-week apprentice at the salon five months ago.

She said then: "My ambition is to be a vendeuse. I want to start right from the bottom."

They took her at her word, and life became tough for Edwina. Her duties involved scrubbing floors, making tea for the staff, helping the models on with their dresses, and picking the clothes.

Last week Edwina, who is now studying at a secretarial college, told me: "I would rather not say why I left Cavanagh's. I suppose you could say I thought I would be better off making clothes at home."

"I decided that it would be better if I took a secretarial course. But further than that I would rather not say."

A spokeswoman at Cavanagh's commented: "She will be much better suited as a secretary."

THE heating arrangements at Buckingham Palace have long been a source of trouble and irritation to the Royal Family and their staff. The late King spent a vast amount of money after the war bringing the system up to date. But it is still not entirely satisfactory.

The bulk of the week's turnover came from transactions in China Light of which approximately 100,000 shares changed hands.

Despite unfavourable comment on the company's recent move, China Light shares have remained fairly steady.

Banks continued active on investment buying. In Utilities both Hongkong Trams and Telephones showed improved quotations while the former improved by over a dollar on rumours of a possible bonus issue.

Prices on the whole showed all-round improvement as can be seen from the above table. Banks again led with another $15 rise.

Both the ferry companies came in for demand. Star Ferry was up $4.50 on the previous week. Yau Ma Tei was up $4.50 on the previous week.

Telephones continued its slow rise and closed at $26.30. Hongkong Land remained firm at $35.5 while Hotels improved a dollar on the previous week.

Yesterday's turnover was extremely good with business fairly well spread over the board. Utilities without exception improved on the previous day's rates. Towards the close there was sign of profit-taking but with little effect on the prices.

The market closed on a firm undertone with considerable buying power apparent.

Market Survey

Following is a brief survey of the market for the past week:

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Call Me Madam

Sir,—On your front page on Wednesday you carried a news item concerning Mrs. Clara Booth Luce, newly confirmed American ambassador to Brazil.

In a footnote in parenthesis you state that a musical comedy was written based on her career, i.e., "Call Me Madam". May I point out that this musical was not based on the life of Clara Booth Luce, but that of Perle Mesta, famous Washington hostess and one-time American ambassador to Luxembourg.

First Geological Map Of Asia Being Printed

By A CHINA MAIL REPORTER

The first geological map of all Asia, which has been in the making for 4½ years, will be completed later this year, a United Nations geological expert said in Hongkong today.

He is Dr C. Y. Li, chief of the Mineral Resources Development section of the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (Ecaf).

From the Files 25 years AGO

APPEARING at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on a summons for allowing his dog in a public thoroughfare without a muzzle for which he was fined $8 — J. Beck of Luna Building, was sharply rebuked by Mr Wynne-Jones for putting on his hat in court.

"Beck, you must not put on your hat while you are in my Court. I don't like your attitude at all," said the Magistrate.

"I was leaving the Court, Sir," he replied.

"You were still inside the court. Do you know what contempt of Court means? It is not contempt for me; it is contempt for the King."

"Yes sir," replied the defendant. The magistrate then discharged him.

'SKIN OF OUR TEETH' Staged By Garrison Players

PLAY-GOERS who are somewhat weary of the conventional type of play seen so often on the amateur stage will find it rewarding to attend the performance of The Skin of Our Teeth, at the Loke Yew Hall.

This is certainly the Garrison Players' most ambitious effort, but while they can count on the services of a talented and experienced producers as Barbara Lawrence, they need not hesitate to tackle the more significant drama of this kind.

Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer prize-winning play offers a fascinatingly varied theme, as we are at one and the same time following the saga of the human race and the fortunes of a normal American family in an indefinite era.

The play is said to contain a message, but — to borrow a thought from Hazlitt — we need not fear that the allegory will bite us.

The play scintillates with every form of comedy, from satirical wit to sheer horse-play. The middle of human survival is presented in a dramatic series of episodes, the dramatist casting aside the restraints of time and convention to give us theatre that is anything but tame.

The Garrison Players moved to a new environment for this production in order to try the experiment of a venture on a larger scale — giving an opportunity to young and inexperienced actors as well as the well-tried performers. The producer clearly believed in the play and infected her cast with her own enthusiasm, with excellent results.

The striking sets were designed by Bob Elliott and executed by the talented stage crew, who are to be congratulated on their competent handling of what must have been a technically difficult effect in Act III.

Many of the costumes were pleasantly colourful and all were ingeniously symbolic of the timelessness of the theme. The unusual stage properties, including such fantasies as a dinosaur and mammoth, were a challenge the back-stage assistants coped with most successfully.

The action of the play centres around the Antrobus family and their maid, Sabina. Bill Brown showed commendable understanding of the subtleties of his part as the father of the family — a solid citizen with the instincts of a Casanova.

He interpreted the role with verve and forcefulness, but might have convinced to convey at least an impression of middle-aged spread.

Murray Leavitt was an admirable foil for her husband in her very natural performance as Mrs Antrobus, the eternal mother-type.

She showed a good sense of comedy in her mild caricature of the platform-loving American matron.

Jane Redman is a talented newcomer to the Hongkong stage who gave an excellent performance as Sabina, the girl who took beauty contests in her stride but was always ready to throw up the sponge in a crisis.

Jane Redman brought out every ounce of comedy in her role and revealed such useful assets as a good clear voice and ease of manner.

The minor roles were competently handled by various supporting players. Thelma Stuart was a spirited and entertaining Gypsy fortune-teller with a touch of the victorious. Roger Needell played the small part of Mr Fitzpatrick with brisk efficiency. The Convenors and "walk-on" players put life and vigour into their brief appearances, especially in the Atlantic City sequence, when the stilted gaudy of the gaudy revellers in their ritual dance underlines the theme of the play, the struggle for survival.

On the whole the producer is to be congratulated on her discriminating handling of this most interesting play, a production notable for its clear-cut characterization and good pace. An appreciative audience attended the performance last night and it is to be hoped that the success is repeated on Friday, the last show for this season, the patrons of the amateur theatre will look forward to seeing such enterprising ventures on the part of the Garrison Players next winter.
